Failure to disclose all such information could result in the policy being rendered void and as a result claims may not be paid.

Before inception of cover

All material information must be disclosed to insurers to enable terms to be negotiated and cover arranged. This is not limited to answering specific questions that may be asked. Any changes which may occur or come to light after a quotation has been given must also be notified.

After inception of cover

The duty of disclosure is re-imposed when there are changes or variations in cover and when the policy is renewed or extended. In addition, changes which substantially increase the risk, or relate to compliance with a warranty or condition in the policy must be notified at once.

This reflects the general position under English Law and may not apply in the event that your policy contains an innocent non-disclosure clause or if the contract is subject to the law of another country.

Please contact us if you are in any doubt as to whether or not information might be material or if you have any concerns that underwriters might not be aware of all material information
